Position available: Allergy & Immunology Physician

Job Description: Allergic Disease Associates, P.C./The Asthma Center, a university medical school-affiliated private practice in metropolitan Philadelphia, offers an opportunity to exclusively practice adult and pediatric allergy and immunology in a sophisticated, modern and attractive environment with well-trained, experienced colleagues.

We are seeking board-certified candidates in either Internal medicine or Pediatrics and who are board-certified or board-eligible in allergy/immunology to join our team of eight physicians in nine offices. Candidates must possess excellent clinical skills and be comfortable treating individuals of all ages. The ability to communicate and work well with patients, staff and colleagues is a necessity.

The organization and facilities of The Asthma Center enable us to render state-of-the-art evaluation and care for both adults and children suffering from allergies, asthma, sinus disorders and adverse food and drug reactions. We participate in a number of clinical drug trials annually, and self-fund original research that has led to publications in national peer-reviewed journals.

We will consider candidates for both full-time and part-time positions.
